CES Rolls Out New Professional Development Direction

Evan Grasser

Dr. Gloria Rendon

CES continues to strive to serve the professional development needs of our school and district leaders. In addition to the services provided to teachers through LEAP, SITE and TAP, CES provides professional development through ALD (Administrators Leadership Development), the Superintendents Leadership Academy and the School Board Leadership Development programs. CES is placing all these levels of leadership professional development programs under one umbrella, which will be directed by two retired educators whose professional experience spans from the classroom to the superintendency. Dr. Gloria Rendon retired as Superintendent of Santa Fe Public Schools and then went on to work for the Coalition of Educational Leaders and eventually became its Executive Director. Evan Grasser, a native New Mexican, returned to work for Rio Rancho Public Schools as Chief School Improvement Officer after serving as a high school Principal and Deputy Superintendent in Texas. These two educators will coordinate and facilitate all CES leadership programs, some of which are described below.

ALD, formerly known as the Principal Leadership Development Program (PLD), provides an alternative method for aspiring administrators to attain a NM Administrator's license. Educators who have a master's degree and a 3A Teaching License may apply for acceptance into the program. The program requires 180 internship hours under the supervision of their mentor and includes opportunities for participants to engage in professional readings, role-playing activities, face-to-face and virtual learning, along with opportunities to reflect on their learning. The coursework was developed by a group of highly successful educators and has been continually revised since its inception. The program is taught by former NM educators with a vast experience in many administrative roles. In addition to the Program Directors, instructors have included Marc Space, Kelly Callahan, Gary Tripp, Michael Grossman, and Dr. Linda Paul. This year the program will include new PED initiatives and requirements. ALD is approved by the NM Professional Standards Commission, and CES is proud to report that every person who has completed the program and has taken the administrator exam has passed the test!

The Superintendents Leadership Academy, which took the place of the former Administrators Educational Symposium, was launched in 2019 and provided professional development opportunities to superintendents throughout the 2019-20 school year. Several professional development sessions were conducted in various regions of the state. With the assistance of several superintendents, the Program Directors will work collaboratively with CES staff to develop the Academy's program for the coming school year. As part of this program, new superintendents also receive mentoring and support from other superintendents across the state.

Another successful initiative launched in December of 2019 is the School Board Leadership Development program. The program, developed by a focus group facilitated by Dr. Rendon and Dr. Hugh Prather, provides support and information to newly elected school board members. This past November brought about 120 new members into the ranks. Board members have participated in three sessions strategically focused on roles and responsibilities, communication and superintendent evaluation, and budget and finance. The fourth session, scheduled for July, will address strategic planning. Each session has been well attended and participants report that the sessions are helpful and informative to them in their new roles.

Possible new programs include mentoring and support for new principals as well as central office administrators. CES will partner with NMCEL in facilitating the successful Aspiring Superintendents program which has been in place for several years. Several successful Superintendents are products of the Aspiring Superintendents program. These initiatives are in the planning stages and more information will be provided soon.

School leaders aspiring to the role of school or district administrators or current administrators who wish to participate in further professional development should contact David Chavez at CES.

CES' Tip of the Month:

Emergency Procurement methods (NMSA 1978, Section 13-1-127) may only be used when there exists a threat to public health, welfare, safety or property requiring procurement under emergency conditions. No later than three business days after an emergency procurement, the CPO or designee must post notice of any emergency procurement to the organization's and State's websites. 357 words are used to direct the process, and trickiness is added because interpretation can depend so much upon perception.

The possibility of audit exception, reporting, and other problems with Emergency Procurement can be avoided by using an existing CES contract. Your organization will be completely compliant with the Procurement Code by making your purchase through CES. CES stands ready to serve.

CES Welcomes New Employees

Please join us in welcoming our new Ancillary Services Administrative Assistant, Angelina Zamaripa to the CES family. Angelina has been in education for 20+ years ranging from infants all the way to high school students. She enjoys working with students as well as making sure that they are receiving the appropriate services that they need. She has a bachelor's degree in Elementary Education (K-8) with a dual major in Special Education. Angelina was previously at a charter high school for 8 years and had many different hats to wear from enrollment, attendance, Health assistant as well as the senior representative and now is excited to be joining us. Welcome to the team, Angelina!

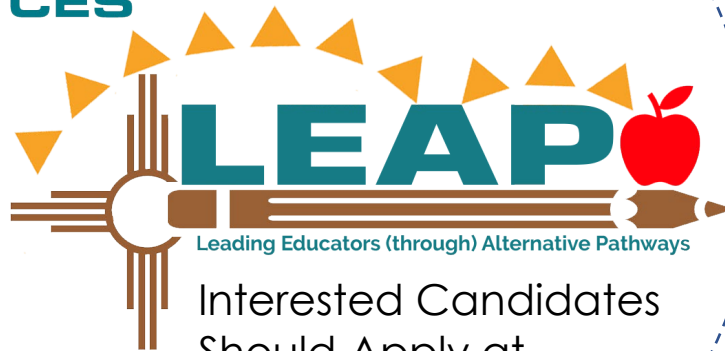

Please join us in welcoming Natasha Ortiz, Member Service Representative to the CES Team! Natasha is a native New Mexican who left after high school to travel for a couple of years, settling in San Diego, California. She spent over 20 years in San Diego, where she became a buyer in the manufacturing industry for Aerospace and Commercial Industries. Returning to Albuquerque in 2012, she started working in the accounting field and continued working in procurement. Natasha was excited to be offered the position at CES, working for the people of New Mexico. Natasha spends her off time at her daughters' volleyball games or volunteering at St Mary's Catholic School for the youth sport programs. Natasha is happy to be at CES and can't wait to be back at the office so she can get to know everyone.
